

Fieldnotes

An identity for a fictional independent journal.

Identity / Typography / Editorial

Original demonstration work by Portfolia.

Observe. Collect. Share.

Fieldnotes is a fictional journal about everyday places and the people who notice them.

The identity pairs a four-part collecting mark with generous typography and a warm palette.

THREE DESIGN PRINCIPLES

- 01 A recognisable mark at small sizes.
- 02 Clear hierarchy for long-form reading.
- 03 Enough space for photography to breathe.

A system of four.

PRIMARY MARK

A modular shape brings four observations together.
The smaller variation keeps the same proportions.

Letters with room.

THE SMALL THINGS

A walk becomes a story.

A clear heading, a short introduction, a little space.

Hierarchy makes a page inviting before it is read.

Editorial cover and campaign study

Show more than a mark.

An identity portfolio benefits from showing the brief, the visual system and its use at different scales. Explain the decisions that connect these stages.

ABOUT THIS EXAMPLE

Created by Portfolia for demonstration purposes.
Fieldnotes is a fictional brief, not a client project.
All layouts and geometric artwork are original.
